Lanaforge: Hello, my children. I am here to discuss the research Kathy has done today. We asked her to investigate and draw lines on a map and every time she would have discovered something and had inner questions we would answer them and reveal certain details.

Dachau and Mauthausen were indeed the places where the Nazi ideas of Hitler came into existence. Hitler read and talked a lot with others and these thoughts were imprinted in his mind to use him.

The political and economic situation of that time was a fertile ground for Caligastia and his partners to influence him to bring forth these ideas. It is a fact that the suggestion about the pure Aryan race of which he spoke came from the enemies of Christ to bring confusion in the minds of the population. They had to create something horrible to work against Christendom and it got two faces in Europe: that of Hitler and that of Lenin. Each with its specificity but the result for the faithful protesting against their attitudes and conduct were dramatic.

Munich and Linz, especially the region of Linz, are regions where many holy places exist since ancient times. The strengthening of the dark network of Caligastia happened there.

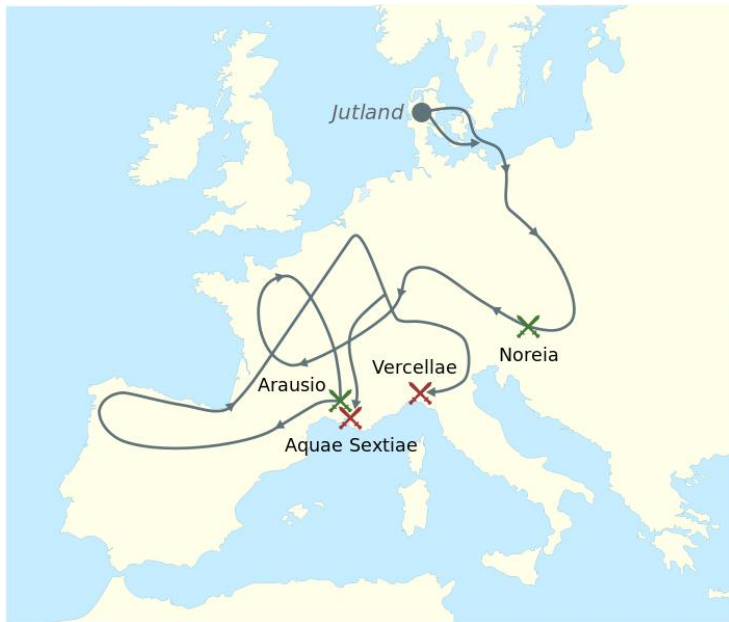

We will make you understand on the spot when you visit certain buildings and archaeological sites where you will feel our presence why Mauthausen (Austria) was selected whose location is so close to the city of Linz (Austria). In the city of Linz many masterpieces were created; a very famous mathematician (Kepler) and a great musician (Bruckner) lived there. Linz was once a cultural center in Europe where everyone came across each other. The Bavarian (Munich) population is much closer to the Austrian population than the ones of Northern Germany where most descendants of the Teutons lived.

{Note Kathy January 2014: Teutons: Celtic-Germanic tribes living in small villages that moved more than 2,000 years ago from the North of Denmark and which made life for the Romans very harsh. They moved to France and Spain came along the Danube, and even invaded England (Teutons, Angeli, Saxons). The Romans never dominated an area on the other side of the Rhine or the Danube. They are not the "Teutonic Knights" or "German order" which was a spiritual order of not free people, created during the third crusade in the 12th century, 700 years ago for war purposes.}

Roman map with their occupied territories.

Invasion route Teutons, starting from Jutland Denmark. The Green crosses are their victories over the Romans and the red crosses are the Roman victories.

It is a fact that all these concentration camps in Germany and the occupied countries were initially built to get rid of his political enemies, to get rid of mentally handicapped people, homosexuals, Gypsies and later the Jewish people and also to provide cheap labor. These camps were also used to do unfortunate medical experiments. Killing people in such circumstances is definitely not good for the evolution of a soul.

Mauthausen has something that you will discover when you will be there. Try to find some old sites around Linz from the time of the Greeks and much older (Linz goes back to 4,000 B.C.) The regions of (Germany)-Bavaria and Austria were once inhabited by Neanderthals which were exterminated by more advanced human races.

Do some research around Vienna (Austria) and the political climate of that time? Hitler and Lenin encountered each other and exchanged their views, and thus influenced indeed each other. With the difference that Lenin was absolutely against religion and Hitler wanted to keep religion as means of control over the population (Bavaria and Austria where mainly Catholics). But this didn't last very long; after the first protests Hitler destroyed the high religious clerics and prosecuted them.

It was a war of Caligastia against Christ and those who believed in One God, disguised indeed, but at the base it was just that. They managed to destroy Christendom in Russia, to kill the whole family of the last Christian Tsar of the Romanov Dynasty and symbolized the Tsar as the source of the misery of the Russians.

One has tried to destroy Christendom in Russia through Bolshevism by terrorizing and killing people and in Germany an attempt was done to create confusion in the minds of people to obtain power by saying that God was with them: "God mit Uns" was Hitler's motto. He wanted to start with more communist ideas, but was not able to maintain them and had to adapt. Once he came on power he prevailed by terror. Hitler did not possess high intelligence but was eloquent and much influenced by dark forces. Lenin was a different case, but both were used for the plans of the beast. Now we need to remedy the situation.

Everything will go well, and you will discover interesting things. Adamson will remain in your neighborhood; he knows the local area and can guide you. That was it my children. I expect you again tomorrow. Goodbye and have a good afternoon.

END.
